

Walt Shelton is an award-winning author, one of the most read faith and life-quality columnists in Texas, and a long-time Professor at Baylor Law School. His first book, The Daily Practice of Life: Practical Reflections Toward Meaningful Living (CrossLink Publishing 2020), won a Nautilus Award in the Religion/Spirituality of Western Thought category. CrossLink published Professor Shelton's second book, Authentic Living in All Seasons: Focused, Fearless, and Balanced (CrossLink Publishing 2022), in June 2022, less than two years after his first book. The Austin American-Statesman has published more than sixty of his columns over the years, with Progressive Christianity and a variety of other sources publishing numerous additional articles and posts.

Professor Shelton teaches four Environmental Law and Water Law courses at Baylor Law School, where he has taught for thirty-one years. He devotes all his work life to teaching, working with students, writing, and frequent speaking to a variety of groups on faith, wellness, ethical, and life-quality subjects. Although Professor Shelton practices law very little, his peers recognize him for excellence via listing in Best Lawyers in America for twenty-four consecutive years (currently listed under Environmental Law and Water Law).

Professor Shelton lives in Austin with his wife Roxanne and rescue dachshund, Red. They have two children and five grandchildren. Learn more at www.WaltShelton.com
